The British- and Irish-English phrase (all) fur coat(s) and no knickers, or no drawers, denotes ostentatious vulgarity in social life, from the literal sense of a fashionably dressed woman whose appearance covers vulgarity. These are the earliest occurrences of the phrase that I have found, presented in chronological order:

Amsterdam really isn't the place to go to buy fur even though it has a cold weather climate. As indicated above people are realy militant about the issue. Doing a search for "fur" on the Bijenkorf (Amsterdam's top/only department store) website returned a total of 56 items. If you look through them you will notice almost all are "faux".
