I recently purchased a low mileage 2000 R1100rt to supplement my 2005 R1150rt.. you know to split up the miles Ô Ç^a ;) (I love the 5 speed vs the 6)

Anyway the clutch was a little out of adjustment and I adjusted it to around 6mm play at the end of the lever and it seems perfect. I am now

reading the threads here and they all state to have 12mm between the knurled adjuster and the lock ring.

On some models BMW
has installed a filling adapter on the right-hand front brake caliper instead of a standard bleed screw. This is the same adapter you will find when bleeding and flushing the clutch circuit. 1) Remove the cover (grub screw) with the appropriate sized hex key. This allows access to the check valve ball fitting.
