The riverside Rambla de la Llibertat is Girona's social hub and is lined with cafes and smart shops (the city famously has more shops per capita than anywhere in Spain), and hosts a flower market on Saturdays. Walk under the arcades and look up to spot various curiosities, of which Girona has an abundance – the nearby tourist office at No.1 has maps for ‘treasure hunt’ games for kids.

Girona was very special, a very memorable stay, and the hotel exceptional. We are looking forward to booking again with Inntravel. We were a bit concerned that our ten year old might not last the pace, and get bored, but apart from the odd relapse he really enjoyed it too. We are not experienced or regular cyclists so it was a new departure for us as a family.
