Splicing that type of rope and cord is relatively straightforward. Nowadays the most common type of rope used on board yachts, dinghies, motorboats, working boats and ferries is braided rope. Few people have the knowledge to splice it, or even where to start. Splicing Modern Ropes is the first guide to this essential skill.

In several chapter of this book (i.e. chapter 2 Ring Splice or chapter 6 Eye Splice for braided rope with 3 strand core) the instructions are criptic or illogical or incomplete. More :the pictures are unuseful because they pass directly from the first tuck to the finished splice. A very bad quality book in my opinion.

These will vary according to the type of rope being spliced. The splicing fid is a traditional tool to make openings beneath the strands of twisted or square plaited ropes. Braided ropes are spliced using a fid and pusher. The fid works like a large sewing needle: it stiffens the rope end to allow it to be pulled

The Perfect Line - Gleistein Ropes

Rope splicing in ropework is the forming of a semi-permanent joint between two ropes or two parts of the same rope by partly untwisting and then interweaving their strands. Splices can be used to form a stopper at the end of a line, to form a loop or an eye in a rope, or for joining two ropes together. Splices are preferred to knotted rope, since while a knot typically reduces the strength by ...
