that the purpose of elementary school social studies is to enable students to understand, participate in, and make informed decisions about their world. This is not necessarily a skill students learn in English or math class, but in a space that fosters questioning, problem-solving and making thoughtful value judgments.

The importance of Social Studies in elementary schools

On the ground, this means that elementary and intermediate school teachers have a dual mission: teaching multiple content areas and increasing reading and math standardized test scores. If teachers feel underqualified or ill-equipped to
