An important contribution to the understanding of alchemical psychology, this book draws on a postmodern sensibility to develop an original understanding of the black sun. It offers insight into modernity, the act of imagination, and the work of analysis in understanding depression, trauma, and transformation of the soul.

In The Black Sun, Stan Marlan takes us on an unflinching and ultimately healing journey through the shadowed land of despair where most abandon all hope. There, we find, a strange light shines, and in that light we can discern what is otherwise invisible. Marlan teaches us how to see in the dark. || Murray Stein, author of Jung's Map of the Soul opportunity. It is noteworthy that dreams of a black sun or an arche-typal abyss can be both a warning of psychic and/or physical demise as well as the beginning of a significant renewal. In alchemy the nigredo is first, and, according to Plato, the begin-ning is the most important part of the work. I agree with Marlan that

Suns can correspond to gold, citrinitas, generative masculine principles, imagery of "the king", or Apollo, the fiery spirit or sulfur, the divine spark in man, nobility, or incorruptibility. Recurring images of specific solar motifs can be found in the form of a "Dark" or "Black Sun", or a green lion devouring a sun.

Suns in alchemy - Wikipedia

The Black Sun is an esoteric symbol dating far back into antiquity, petroglyphs have been found in the Americas of this ancient symbol as well as artifacts discovered in 3000 year old graves of Nordic women such as the Zierscheiben pictured below. Since the masses are not taught true history or the true origins of most things this symbol is now mainly known for its placement in the floor at Wewelsburg Castle by the SS of the German Reich and the casual researcher won't look much further ...

Esoteric Meaning Of The Black Sun || Esoteric Awakening

The Black Sun is an extraordinary examination of the alchemical stage known as the "nigredo"...the blackening or mortification, so often experienced as depression, terror, or madness. I was especially transfixed at the way in which Dr. Marlan expresses the paradoxical nature of these experiences in that the darkness itself contains a "shine" or luminescence, that is the light of nature, not that of heaven.

He draws upon his clinical experiences - and on a wide range of literature and art, including Goethe's Faust, Dante's Inferno, the black art of Rothko and Reinhardt - to explore the influence of light and shadow on the fundamental structures of modern thought as well as the contemporary practice of analysis. He shows that the black sun accompanies not only the most negative of psychic experiences but also the most sublime, resonating with the mystical experience of negative theology; the ...

Marlan's book The Black Sun: The Alchemy and Art of Darkness explores darkness as a metaphor for negative psychological experiences, such as despair and depression. As a rule, Marlan maintains, Western psychology treats such "dark" experiences as purely negative, i.e. as experiences to be avoided or, at best, "gotten through," rather than experienced and potentially valued on their own terms.
