Central bank intervention and a retreat of more apocalyptic narratives on Covid-19 can be credited for the FTSE All-Share rallying around 28 per cent from its March low. Investors in shares have had a reprieve, but a genuine recovery depends on the real economy, which is vulnerable to a dreaded second wave reigniting the fear factor.

Added together, our unpaid loans make up the UK's national debt. Right now, that debt is growing violently. The Government forecasts it will soar to an eye-watering £1.1 trillion by 2011. To put that in perspective, the UK went bust in 1976 running a budget deficit of 6% of GDP. In 2010 that deficit is going to top 11%.
