The War on Normal People offers a staunchly capitalist and polemical take on the subject of Universal Basic Income (UBI), which proposes giving every person an unconditional small sum of money each month. Andrew Yang, an entrepreneur with presidential ambitions, claims that mass technological unemployment is imminent, and he argues that UBI is the only way the "normal people" of the American middle class will be able to avoid destitution.

A report published during Obama's final days in office predicted that 83% of jobs in which people make $20 dollars or less an hour will be subject to automation, and top financial institutions, such as Bain Capital and McKinsey, are predicting that around 20–30% of the total job market will disappear due to the development of autonomous technologies. All this, Yang contends, amounts to a war on normal people, and it's high time normal people started fighting back.

Introduction. Normal people. Seventy percent of Americans consider themselves part of the middle class. Chances are, you do, too. Right now some of the smartest people in the country are trying to figure out how to replace you with an overseas worker, a cheaper version of you, or, increasingly, a widget, software program, or robot.
