Two former paramilitary leaders - one republican, one loyalist - speak with unprecedented frankness about their role in some of the most appalling violence of the Troubles. The openness of Brendan Hughes of the IRA and David Ervine of the UVF results in a book of shocking and irresistible testimony, their voices set in the context of a narrative by Ed Moloney of their lives and of the society they grew up in.

Voices from the Grave: Two Men's War in Ireland (2010) The dawning of peace in Northern Ireland has not brought with it much truth about what happened during the long war. Very few of the paramilitary leaders on either side have ever spoken candidly about their role in that bloody conflict. But here, in a dramatic break with the unwritten laws of paramilitary omerta, two leading figures from opposing sides reveal their involvement in bombings, shootings and killings and speak frankly about ...

In the wake of Patrick Radden Keefe's book 'Say Nothing', here, as evidence that many of the stories in his book have already been told, is the prize-winning RTE documentary 'Voices From The Grave', which I co-produced. The film is based on interviews of the late Brendan Hughes by Anthony McIntyre for the Boston College archive.

Voices from the Grave Part 3 (of 3) Documentary, Ireland 2010. The stories of two of the key figures of the Irish Troubles, the IRA's Brendan Hughes and the UVF's David Ervine. Both men told their stories to the Boston College Belfast Archive on the understanding that the contents of their interviews could not be revealed until after their deaths. After the deaths of both men, the director of the archive, Ed Moloney wrote a book, 'Voices from the Grave' drawn from those interviews.

Ed Moloney's Voices from the Grave follows his highly acclaimed A Secret History of the IRA, the best-informed account yet written of the IRA's evolution from ruthless guerilla army into governmental party. But reconciliation between political figures who until very recently wished each other dead or in jail has not been accompanied by very much truth-telling about the past.
