Shakespeare 's Sonnets. A sonnet is a fourteen-line lyric poem, traditionally written in iambic pentameter—that is, in lines ten syllables long, with accents falling on every second syllable, as in: “ Shall I com pare thee to a sum mer ' s day ? ” . The sonnet form first became popular during the Italian Renaissance, when the poet Petrarch published a sequence of love sonnets addressed to an idealized woman named Laura.

Shakespeare wrote 154 sonnets in all. The first 126 sonnets are addressed to his friend W.H., while the other 26 sonnets are conventional exercises inverse. The present sonnet is No. 66. The poet points out that every beautiful thing in nature is sure to decline either abruptly or in due course of nature ' s time.

~~Sonnet 138 by Shakespeare — Summary and Analysis~~

Sonnet 138 presents a candid psychological study of the mistress that reveals many of her hypocrisies. Certainly she is still very much the poet's mistress, but the poet is under no illusions about her character: "When my love swears that she is made of truth, / I do believe her, though I know she lies."
